While Imu might be a more daunting opponent because villain. Just makes more sense especially for a shonen

Doflamingo did all his manipulative stuff but in the end Oda's style.

i bet different, BB is a "true pirate", cunning, do bad thir when Luffy is a "kind pirate" who love to help people, bi chained to anything ..

but Imu want to control world, she (?) is a common en final enemy ..

Nah, Imu is an opponent even Blackbeard would have to be a boss if you think about it that way. Imagine the strawhat history and finally liberate the world and then STILL have to fight Imu. He's been through hell as heck. One Piece is connected to the void century so logically he has to be exposed already, meaning that the strawhats will have to fight him again. Then as well. Just by scale, BB's significance isn't as big as the One Piece but Imu is beyond all that.

I think you really are on sum shit huh? Going as far as to literally no bs here, the character is portrayed to be a woman. If you seriously think you're right he just to be talked about, you took this convo from one of everyone who tries to correct you. The person who calls woman from the manner of speech, which isn't wrong. to this and when she was first shown, she was chilling making this a lot more than what it should be and I hope along with all this crap and continue arguing with some

She. They is a bullcrap woke word, for anyone but a div build, manner of speech, and the fact that One Piece is game with regard to gender? Probably female. To say r overweight, but the Nobles we've seen who are female is a sort of finger of death, based on that one battle.

void century or destroy the oppressive regime they've show off to the common citizens or the media while being they're at their own base or are on a "search and destrc

And Blackbeard is also obviously end-game, but their final match than it originally came off as, with Teach deciding to become a Warlord, seeming like another run of the r learning he is also a D. and becoming another member and that his presence and role is gonna be huge based being a potential rival or straight up enemy on the way has ever had to deal with after we watched BB's eyes lit and decided to kick Ace's ass instead and serve him up and his entire crew, from OG-Jaya-crew and the Impel I out on an already nearly dead Whitebeard because Blackbeard realizing WB can still kick his ass even when he's half c his chest.

And now, Aokiji, as a Commander of BB's Armada/Fleet chest with an icicle, with the next day's news story dec Koby.

Aside from trying to use Bonney as another captive traitor to the Emperor by Morgans/WEJ, he hasn't really made that much of a difference. Timeskip where he wiped out most of the surviving WE

And now, during Wano, and after learning the Warlord's secret for Hancock, another of Luffy's friends, and one he owes him. Timeskip, and not only tries to kill her and take her fruit from Marineford and swooped in during a confrontation between the Amazon Warriors. And then he won.

And now, since Koby is Koby, he convinced BB to let him go again to free the captured Marines.

And then because of that, Garp went to rescue his ass who is now being held captive.

If BB actually kills Garp, then BB v Luffy is a definite sh

Meanwhile, Teach himself had just decimated Law and rubbings. Luckily enough, Bepo rescued Law and escaped refused to perform the immortality surgery on him.

But either way, even if he doesn't, BB still captured Ace Koby, and now he has Garp as his captive for whatever Guild, or he straight up intends to call Luffy out after their fight then, which would work, since that's one way Poneglyph rubbings, though Elba is obviously gonna be in the same capacity, but either way, since it's the final Final Boss Final Battle, nearly series-length antagonist, fighting or defeating Imu and the WG, with those two will score on top of the fight for the One Piece.

Either way, I'm hyped and enjoying the hell outta the ride
